AN AFFLICTED PEOPLE.

The London Standard of August 30th, contains a letter from Jerusalem dated August 2nd, signed by thirteen of the Heads and Rabbis of certain Congregations in the Holy City, giving a lamentable account of the distresses and sufferings of the people there and appealing for succour to their brethren in the British empire. It seems from their statement that since last winter the Holy Land has been successively desolated by drought, locusts, famine and pestilence in the most awful manner. "The heavens were shut up in the winter," says the letter, and there was no rain—provisions became dearer and water scarce. Then there came locusts, which laid waste the land, so that the harvest of the field perished. And then there came a famine. And now, woe unto us, there is death! for the anger of the Lord has been kindled, and a fearful epidemic of cholera is raging in all the towns and villages around us most terrible. * * * * The gates of Jerusalem are closed. None can go out and none can come in. The city is in a state of siege. The inspectors of quarantine surround it. * * * Alas! it is a time of great calamity for Jerusalem." Such is the picture which this letter gives of the condition of Palestine and Jerusalem. Well might the sufferers call for help upon their more fortunate brethren in England, who, as soon as the cry came up to them, with the kindness and liberality which have always characterized the Jews in their dealings with one another, took active and vigorous measures for relieving the wants and alleviating the affliction which were set forth in the appeal.

Queen Victoria at Coburg.

The little town of Coburg, in Saxe-Gotha, one of the numerous petty Principalities of Germany, was the scene on the 26th August of quite an imposing ceremony, which drew a great crowd of people from different directions to witness it. On that day a statue of the late Prince Albert, which had been executed by order of the widowed Queen (Victoria) at her own expense, was for the first time unveiled to public view and duly inaugurated in one of the squares of that town. The occasion was, of course, an interesting one—rendered the more so by the personal attendance of the Queen, who took part in the proceedings. The statue was a present from Her Majesty to the town of Coburg, four miles from which, at Rosenau, the country residence of the late Duke, the father of Prince Albert, the latter was born. This retired place was occupied by the Queen during her visit to Coburg. Recent London papers contain full particulars from their correspondents of the inauguration of the statue, which we need not insert, as few of our readers feel any interest in so remote and monarchial an affair. But as Queen Victoria is, for her womanly virtues, a general favorite wherever the English language is spoken, it may not be amiss for us to insert a brief extract, relating what she did on the occasion. When the veil which concealed the statue was removed, "the young ladies advanced to the sound of music to lay their garlands on the monument. All this time Her Majesty and her friends stood up, and as soon as this part of the ceremonial was over, she descended from the gallery, escorted by the Duke of Coburg and followed by the other Princes and Princesses, and walked to the monument, upon which she laid a garland and where some of the ladies were presented to her. She then returned to the gallery, and immediately afterwards left."

The statue is described to be about ten feet in height and the Prince is represented in the costume of a Knight of the Garter. The face is turned towards the Town Hall, in front of which the Royal gallery, in which sat the Queen during the ceremony, was placed. The pedestal bears in front the inscription: "Albert Prince of Saxe Coburg and Gotha, Duke of Saxony, Prince Consort of Great Britian and Ireland, born 26th August, 1819, died 14th December, 1862." The statue is said to be a faithful portrait of the deceased. Queen Victoria was born May 24th, 1819, and is now in her 47th year. She succeeded to the Throne in February, 1837, and was married February 10th, 1839. She has a family of nine children, all living and well to do in the world.

Sons of Temperance.

A home correspondent of the Nashville Gazette, writes under the date, September 8:

Until recently it has generally been supposed that this order was nearly or quite extinct, in this part of the country at least. And for a time, during the last four years of terrible conflict and carnage, this impression has had some foundation. For, as society became disorganized from the effects of the war, all such moral organizations were either broken up entirely or seriously embarrassed. This was the case both North and South; but not so much at the North, however, as at the South, as the war was carried on almost entirely in the Southern States, and of course both armies being there, disorder and destruction followed as a consequence. At the close of the war the impression seemed to prevail that the order was extinct, and that to think of such a thing as the Order of the Sons of Temperance was entirely out of the question and absurb. But, thanks to the goodness of an Allwise Being, and the faithfulness of a few votaries of the good old cause, the order did survive the wreck of moral and religious associations, and to day is a living, working order in Tennessee, and is destined to be all over the Southern States. Quietly and slowly yet steadily and surely it commenced its operations in this city, only a few months since, and is now doing more good than thousands are aware of. It was revived with only a few faithful adherents, then regularly, week after week, a few more good and true hearts were added to their number, until now they present a goodly number of sober, substantial, working men, who are bent on extending the principles of the cause they have espoused.

The other day a coach drove up to the New York Hospital, and a patient was admitted suffering, he said, from having swallowed his false teeth. The man was in fearful agony, feeling the teeth cutting his bowels. The resident surgeon made an examination, but could discover nothing, and the man was sent away unrelieved. His teeth were afterwards found in his bed, and he then felt better.

THE DAILY SENTINEL.

WM. E. PELL, Editor.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1865.

OUR TERMS.

THE SENTINEL is issued every morning (Sunday excepted) at the following rates:

For six months, - - - - -	$5.00
For one month - - - - - -	1,00
" two months - - - - -	2.00

Our terms are invariably in advance. The scarcity of money however, obliges us to say to our friends, that responsible and prompt persons who desire the Sentinel need not delay sending us their names at once, who can send us the Cash in a short time. The money may be sent us by the Rail Road Conductors or the Express Company.

The Sentinel.

The circulation of the Daily Sentinel is perhaps already equal to that of any daily in the State. We are obliged to our friends for their attion to its interests. The near approach of the State Convention, the State elections and the Legislature, make this a favorable time to subscribe. We hope our friends will interest themselves to extend its circulation. Our friends will have a good opportunity to send us subscribers and the cash by the delegates to the Convention. We need substantial help to make the Sentinel what it should be. The proceedings of the Convention and the Legislature will be fully reported ed for this paper.

Scarcity of Money.

Nothing at present so cramps the energies of the Southern people and ties the hand of enterprise, as the scarcity of money. It is felt severely in our commercial and in-land towns, but it is far more paralyzing in the country, far from the marts of business. The ordinary operations of farmers and country merchants are at a stand still. Business is without life, and men who under other circumstances could command any amount of money for ordinary purposes, find it now impossible to obtain even what is absolutely needed to supply families with the necessaries of life.

Nor do the prospects before us promise any thing better for the next year. The scarcity of market products by which to effect exchanges beyond the State, are growing scarcer. What we had left us by the war, is being rushed into market for the purchase of goods which are actually needed by the people, which leaves them the less able to pay for what they must have. The Banks provided by the government can afford but little relief. The meagre amount of greenbacks they are allowed to do business upon, and the short time allowed for its repayment, affords but little accommodation.

The remedy for this state of things can only be found in one of two courses. E ther our people must rigidly adhere to the system of economy in living which was forced upon them by the war, or the surplus lands of the country must be sold to capitalists from abroad, who can be induced to cultivate them by a superior class of laborers to those we already have. Both of these courses are dictated by common sense and common prudence.

The recuperation of the country cannot go on without capital, without an increase of more skillful and more energetic labor or the universal practice of proper labor on the part of black and white already here. Capital will not come into the country of its own accord. It must be sought—hunted after, and inducements are to be offered for investments superior to those found in more favored countries. Something of this sort must be done quickly, or our population discouraged and broken down, must seek other climes where they can do better.

Progress of Crime.

The palpable evidences which the newspapers furnish of the progress of crime, confirm the repeated declarations which have been made, of the demoralizing tendencies of war. The late contest has been remarkable in this respect. The foundations of society seem to have been broken up. In the Northern cities especially, whose prosperity in the accumulation of wealth has been unparalleled, crime is rampant. Almost every other item of news contained in the papers, refers to some development of depravity and wickedness. Nor is it confined to the lower classes. There, it is true, crime was never more unbridled. But among merchants, bank and other officers of trust and confidence, defalcation and embezzlement appear to be the order of the day. Outrages and outbreaks occur in the South, but every species of crime is more common at the North.

Hon. Abram Rencher.

We clipped last week from an exchange, a list of the candidates for the State Convention in Chatham County. Among them mentioned was the name of Hon. Abram Rencher. We learn from a responsible source that Mr. R. although urgently solicited to run, declined positively to be a candidate. The state of his health is such as to forbid it, however much he might have desired to serve the people of Chatham.

The Convention.

The defeat of Judge Pearson for the State Convention in the county of Yadkin will be generally regretted.

Dr. J. T. Leach's defeat in Johnston is generally attributed to his inability to canvass. His health has been very poor, recently.

There will be a good deal of talent in the Convention. Many of the best men of the State have been elected.

Profits of Slavery.

We endeavored to show last week, that since slavery is abolished, all the real profits arising from the institution had been realized, either by the blacks themselves or by Northern merchants and manufacturers. Of course we make this a general position, admitting of some exceptions. The cultivation of cotton on good lands may have produced different results, yet even in these cases, the largest portion of the actual profits went to the purchase of slaves, which of course is now lost.

At our request, Mr. Needham Price of Wake, one of our best farmers, has allowed us to copy a portion of his letter recently addressed to Col. Clapp of the Freedman's Bureau. The exhibit will be found to be correct, and entirely sustains our position. Mr. Price says:

"I take the product of my plantation in 1864, and believe the land of the said plantation to be about an average one for fertility in the county of Wake and the surrounding country. I worked on the place five men and five women, good hands. I make the statement as though I rented the place for the fourth part of all that was made, and put men at $5 00, and women at $3 00 per month:

5 men at $5 per month by the year,	$300 00
5 women at $3 per month by the year,	180 00

The Late Election.

The results of the election are not yet sufficiently developed, to form a correct idea of the sentiments of the people in regard to public affairs. The vote as a general thing has been small.—Many who were entitled to vote, remained from the polls from either an indisposition to incur any responsibility or from sheer indifference. No where has there been manifested any opposition, that we are aware, to the policy of President Johnson—no where has there been a disposition manifested to defeat the aims and purposes of the government.

A large number of the substantial people of the State were indisposed to take part in the election, not because they are opposed to the Union or to President Johnson's policy, but because the impression had gone abroad that in carrying out the plans of the President, there has been a dispositien to dictate to the people the men they should vote for. The elective franchise must be unrestrained, uncontrolled and free, or freemen, such as we have in North Carolina, regard it as valueless.

The fact that every man was allowed to go to the polls and vote, without fear of molestation, did not relieve the case. In many cases, the people desired to commit their interests to others of their fellow citizens, than those before them, but who it was understood, would be unacceptable to the authorities; and hence being without a choice, they were indifferent as to results. No one justly chargable with disloyalty—no one who intended to oppose the government, could have drawn them out or gotten their votes, but they felt that having complied with the terms of mercy offered by the government, and having been restored to the privileges of citizenship, they should have the right to vote for whom they pleased to attend to their interests.

Such a feeling as this, does not belong to men who are captious or disloyal. It is the spontaneous uprising of soul which every American feels, when he is called upon to exercise the rights of an American citizen. Not only must the polls be cleared and free, but the people must feel that they can vote for whom they please.

Jacob Johnson.

We have been so crowded as not to give space heretofore to the article with the above caption. We have corrected a couple of dates which probably are typographical errors. We suppose we do no harm in saying, that we think there is hardly any other gentleman in the State than Gov. Swain, who could produce an article in this peculiar vein.

Our Wilmington correspondence came too late to hand. Its facts had been anticipated. We hope the mails on that as well as upon all the routes will improve.

A SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are pleased to announce that the Charlotte and South Carolina trains are now running to Winnsboro', and that a daily train is running on the Greenville Railroad from Alston to Abbeville, thence by stage, 40 miles, to Washington, Ga., connecting with the Georgia Railroad trains 56 miles above Augusta. The distance from Winnsboro' to Alston is 20 miles by stage. Ample accommodations by stage for all passengers and baggage.

The connections are perfect and the time from Charlotte to Washington, Ga., is less than two days.—Charlotte Bulletin.

From the Standard.

Jacob Johnson.

"Let not ambition mock their humble toil,
Their home y joys and destiny obscure,
Nor grandeur hear, with a disdainful smile,
The short but simple annals of the poor."

The brief, simple, and touching narrative of the leading events in the life of Jacob Johnson, given by the late Col. Henderson, in the Raleigh Star, of the 10th of January, 1812, and copied in the Standard of the 25th ult., has more than ordinary significance, when considered in connection with the author and the subject. Both are well entitled to the grateful remembrance of posterity. The former saved the life of the latter, at the imminent risk if not the sacrifice of his own. The latter requited his courage and humanity, by kindness to one destined, perhaps, to save his country from perils not less imminent.

Col. Thomas Henderson was a native of the county of Rockingham, the near kinsman of Richard Henderson, a Judge of ante-revolutionary renown. The latter was one of the founders and Governors of Transylvania, during its transition from a savage wilderness, through successive stages of civilization, until prepared to assume, as the State of Kentucky, a place in the sisterhood of American States. He was the friend and patron of Daniel Boon, the most attractive subject in our annals of story and of song. The father of Archibald and Leonard Henderson, the former a statesman and advocate without his peer in Western North Carolina, the latter one of the most eminent and estimable of the five Chief Justices, who have given character to the jurisprudence of the State.

Col. Henderson may not have been the equal in ability and attainments of any of these gentlemen. He was no ordinary man, nevertheless, and eminently distinguished for the qualities of heart characteristic of his family. A more genial temper, benevolent disposition or kindlier nature, looking back through a vista of forty five years, the writer does not remember to have known. These engaging traits were never perhaps exhibited to greater advantage, than when recounting, as he was wont to do many years ago, the mill-pond adventure, and the thrilling account of the consequent suffering and perilous rescue of himself and friends from the danger in which he had rashly involved them.

We have before us a manuscript account of this affair, from the pen of the venerable William Peace, who died on the 11th of July last in the 93rd of his age.

Capt. Peace was a student of the University in 1796, settled in Raleigh about the close of that year, was, it is supposed, the latest survivor of his class at the University, and a single exception, (if that be an exception,) the oldest citizen of Raleigh. He is not known to have left behind any one who was present at the scene he describes. The manuscript states in substance that more than fifty years ago, he was one of a numerous fishing party at Hunter's mill pond on Walnut Creek, near Raleigh. In the midst of the merriment common to such occasions, Henderson proposed to the writer and Robert Callom, a young Scotch merchant, neither of whom could swim, to take a "skim" upon the pond in a canoe. Henderson was the helmsman, and in due time, for the amusement of the spectators, began to rock the canoe, and ultimately upset it, in ten feet water. Callom caught hold of Peace, who, though unable to swim, succeeded in extricating himself from his grasp, and keeping himself above water until rescued from the bank. Callom in his desperation seized Henderson and both sank to the bottom. At this moment, Jacob Johnson the miller, who was standing on the pier head, sprang into the water, and diving in the direction where he saw them sink, caught hold of Henderson and raised him to the surface, with Callom underneath, but invisible, clinging to the skirt of Henderson's coat. Johnson called for help and was surrounded by a dozen swimmers from the bank, and all were saved. Fortunately for the sufferers, the late Calvin Jones, Henderson's partner, was in the midst. He was an eminent physician and surgeon, and the most efficacious remedies were immediately applied. Henderson was able to speak in a few minutes, but life was apparently extinct in Callom, who was longer under the water. Very active manipulations, and other means, however, after an anxious and doubtful interval, recalled him to life. He died many years since, leaving an amiable widow, subsequently the wife of the Rev. N. B. Harding, D. D.,) a son and a daughter. The daughter is at present a citizen of Raleigh. Henderson felt the effects of his folly for more than a year afterwards, and Johnson is supposed never to have fully recovered.

It is, perhaps, impossible to ascertain the precise date of this transaction. It must have occurred, however, at some time between 1809 and 1812. The Star appeared the 28 of November, 1808, and Johnson died on the 4th of January, 1812.

It is, perhaps, not out of place to remark that the six first volumes of the Star, under the auspices of Jones & Henderson, exhibit a model of journalism, which has never been exceeded, if equalled, in North Carolina. A neat title page, and copious index prefixed to each volume, rendered it more than ordinarily attractive, and ensured its permanent preservation, more frequently than that of any of its cotemporaries.

Col. Henderson was a practical printer, and served his time under the late Wm. Boylan, Esq., then the editor of the Raleigh Minerva. He continued to publish the Star, until about the beginning of the year 1823, when he disposed of the establishment to Bell and Lawrence and removed to Tennessee.

On the 28th of March, a public dinner, numerously attended, at which Col. William Polk presided, was given to him by the citizens of Raleigh. No survivor of those who were present will be able to recall any similar occasion, when the demonstrations of respect and affection were more intense and universal. He was certainly at the time one of the most popular gentlemen in the State, and the public sentiment was well expressed in the toast which desired that the feelings of the Tennesseeans on meeting, might be in perfect contrast to the emotions of North Carolinians on parting with him.

An intelligent citizen of Raleigh, who knew Jacob Johnson well, and who with the writer was ignorant of the existence of Col. Henderson's published tribute to his memory, gave us sometime since interesting details of his personal history, which have been remarkably verified by Henderson's statements.

The person referred to mentioned that he was tolling the State House bell for a funeral, on a very cold day, when he was seen suddenly to fall to the ground. The late Treasurer Haywood had him removed to his office. The subsequent incidents cannot be more affectingly stated than by copying the cotemporaneous narrative of Henderson: "He had for many years occupied an humble but useful station in society. He was City Constable, Sexton, and Porter to the State Bank. In his last illness he was visited by the principal inhabitants of the City, by all of whom he was esteemed for his honesty, sobriety, industry and humane friendly disposition.—Among those to whom he was known and esteemed, none lament him more, [except perhaps his relatives] than the publisher of this paper, for he owes his life, on a particular occasion, to the boldness and humanity of Johnson."

None but one familiar with the peculiar state of society in Raleigh, as it was then constituted, can fully realize the few facts so graphically portrayed by Henderson.

From his position as Walnut Creek miller, Johnson's courage, dexterity and humanity so promptly exhibited, on the occasion referred to, secured him early promotion. He was City Constable, by the vote of the citizens at large, Sexton by the selection of the Church going community, and Porter of the State bank, by the appointment of Col. Polk, the first President of the institution, the early friend and associate of Andrew Jackson, as brave, inflexible and just as he. He was for some years previous to his death, the only surviving field officer of the North Carolina line, and one of the best specimens of the Revolutionary era.

Treasurer Haywood was constitutionally kind, so was Col. Henderson, and so pre eminently was Joseph Gales, and so may have been others "of the principal inhabitans of the City," who visited Jacob Johnson on his death bed. But Col Polk was shrewd, sagacious, energetic and industrious. No idler, no spendthrift, no drunkard, could have won his confidence or eluded his vigilance.

Noscetur a sociis. Few men build up for themselves a character so clearly defined, of well established as that before us, and humble as his origin may have been, he has no descendant how lofty soever his station, who may not well be proud of his lineage. The country has no patriot who will not find incitement in its history to love and struggle to perpetuate institutions, which exhibit such examples and produce such results.

"A king may make a belted knight,
A marquis, duke and a' that,
But an honest man's aboon his might,
Guid faith he maunna fa' that."

WEBSTER'S

VEGETABLE HAIR INVIGORATOR,

IS LIKED BY ALL IN PREFERENCE TO ANY in market for ten reasons:

1. Because it invariably turns gray hair to its original color in the short space of four weeks.
2. Because it is clean and nice, and will not stain the skin.
3. Because it removes all Dandruff and Scurf, and is as harmless as water.
4. Because thousands are using it, and every body should.
5. Because it is peculiarly adapted to all classes, old and young.
6. Because it is purely vegetable—not a dye.
7. Because it kills hair eaters, and makes the hair luxuriant and soft.
8. Because it cures all humors and diseases of the scalp.
9. Because it arrests and prevents the hair from falling.
10. Because it is no humbug, but an honest article, as multitudes can testify; and if it don't prove as recommended, the money will be refunded.

☞ Be sure and use the Invigorator according to directions on the bottle. ☜

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY,
Washington, Sep. 12th, 1865.

WHEREAS, By satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that "THE RALEIGH NATIONAL BANK OF NORTH CAROLINA," in the City of Raleigh, in the County of Wake and State of North Carolina, has been duly organized under and according to the requirements of the Act of Congress, entitled an Act to provide a National Currency, secured by a pledge of United States bonds, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof, approved June 3d, 1864, and has complied with all the provisions of said act required to be complied with before commencing the business of banking under said act.

Now, therefore, I, FREEMAN CLARK, Comptroller of the Currency, do hereby certify that "THE RALEIGH NATIONAL BANK OF NORTH CAROLINA," in the City of Raleigh, in the County of Wake and State of North Carolina, is authorized to commence the business of Banking under the act aforesaid.

JOB WORK

Of every description executed at this office with neatness and dispatch.

CITY AND STATE ITEMS.

COTTON BURNED.—A good deal of cotton has been burned recently upon the Railroads in this State. This is to be regretted whether the loss falls on individuals or the Railroad companies. We need all that we have for exportation, and every effort should be made to prevent its destruction. A car load of cotton yarns was burned up at the Central Depot on Saturday night. It belonged to a firm in Charlotte. No one knows how it came to be burned.

OUTRAGE.—We learn that Mr. Caswell Powell of this County, while at home on Saturday night last, was assaulted and beaten severely by five or six colored men, and his premises plundered of provisions, &c. We have not heard whether any of them have been identified or not.

ANOTHER.—It is reported that a countryman on his way to market to this city, one night last week was attacked by negroes and most of his articles stolen. Our people who come to market should come in squads and should arm themselves against depredations.

CHAPEL HILL.—A difficulty occurred among the students and some of the blacks about Chapel Hill a week or two ago. The matter was investigated by the Trustees and the authorities here last week, and the students were bound over to keep the peace. Orders have been issued to suppress the sale of wines and liquors at Chapel Hill.

MILK.—We specially call attention to the proposition of Mr. Hamilton, to supply the people of Raleigh with good fresh milk. Mr Hamilton has had considerable experience in this business and will do what he says. No man presents stronger claims to the patronage of our people than Mr. Hamilton. He was a brave and excellent soldier and lost both eyes in the late unfortunate war. But he is not disposed to throw himself and family upon the charity of the country. He is a working man. The broom-business which he undertook has now failed, and he turns his attention to the dairy. Every one should patronize Mr. Hamilton.

We call special attention to the sale of stock furniture, &c., on to morrow at the late residence of Mrs. E. T. Jones, deceased.

The sale of the property of the late Dr. Mann of Franklin, to take place on the 5th of October, is an important one. Cotton, tobacco, stock, &c., are to be sold.

BANKERS AND BROKERS.—Messrs. John G. Williams, & Co., continue business at the old stand.

NEW TESTAMENT.—Messrs Tucker have presented us with a neat London addition of the new testament. They propose to present a copy to their customers.

No one should fail to try
Webster's Vegetable Hair Invigorator,
That has Grey Hair, because it invariably turns it to its original color in four weeks. Sold by P. F. Pescud.

Negro Convention in North Carolina.

The negro is ill writhes in the grasp of faction! His interests, his hunger, his very life, are all as nothing to the desperate men by whom he is still held in the clutch of dire necessities! At a moment when intoxicated by an exciting idea, at a time when the poor wretch has been set free, into a Eutopia from the restraints which had been performed for him, so well, the offices of reason, it is a sad and wicked thing that all the sacred things of his life—his moral and his physical life—are being violated in utter contempt by a set of men who look on him, not as a living, human soul, but as a mere expediency, a very utensil of faction! Alas the poor negro! May Heaven in its mercy toward its creatures save the poor slaves, who are free by the merest fiction, from the cruel hands of the men who pretend to be their especial friends!

When the negro asks for bread, his particular "friends" would give him a stone! Now that his greatest, his only dangers, are those from within himself, they teach him to struggle for a saving grace from others! While maternal wants threaten his very existence, they bid him find a panacea for all evils in a privilege of politics!—At a moment when idleness and crime threaten the negro, with, as some men fear, extermination, the destructives teach him to regard as the first and last condition of his salvation, the right of suffrage! A part from the merits of the case, there is something most shockingly cruel and cold blooded in the policy of the men, who, while death is advancing upon their proteges with his scythe raised to cut from one direction, tell the poor dupes to fasten all their attention in the other direction!

North Carolina appears to be the favorite ground for the development of the outrages of the Radicals upon their friends, the blacks. A convention of the negroes of that State has been ordered at the instigation of the party of ruin, and is to be lit by all the firebrands of that cruel faction. Mr. Horace Greeley has been included in the list of the men to be invited, but will, we trust, refuse to sanction by his presence an agitation which can accomplish no other purpose than that of completely unfitting the poor negroes of the South for the first duty of his position—work. We should regret, furthermore, that Mr. Greeley identifies himself with a movement which may result in more than the ruin of the negro alive, but one which in the particular temper of the race at this moment may, under the temptations of opportunity now offering for so horrible a purpose, inflame their passions into an outbreak more terrible than even that of San Domingo.—New York Sun.

NO MAIL SUNDAYS.—The Postmaster General has ordered that on the route from High Point to Salem, the mail service will be, hereafter, six times a week, instead of daily. Therefore, we will have no mail on Sundays, in future, until otherwise ordered.—Salem Press.

PERSONAL.—Maj. Gen. Ruger, commanding the department of North Carolina, accompanied by his lady and part of his staff, is expected to arrive by the Weldon train this afternoon, and will take room at Bailey's hotel.—Wilmington Herald.

The Southern Congressional Election.

The World, in a leading editorial, urges the people of the South to manifest their "unequivocal submissiveness" to the North, not only by doing all that the Constitution, and the laws, and the President and the military commanders of the several States require them to do, but by going still further, and refusing to elect to Congress any man who identified himself with them during the late rebellion—though The World itself admits that this rule of exclusion would so "narrow the field of selection, that in some few Southern districts competent men could not be found." But, says The World, it would be better to take a man "ignorant of politics, and who has been conscripted against his will into the Southern army, than the ablest man in the South if he has been prominent in the rebellion."

We do not believe that the North demands of the South any such exhibition of subserviency and poltroonery as The World advises. The Constitution fixes the qualifications of Senators and Representatives. If the people of the South send to Congress men possessing these qualifications, as they unquestionably will, Congress will not, nay, it cannot, in good faith or with good sense, refuse to admit them. It seems to us that no more insulting demand could be made upon Southern constituencies than that they shall, in order to please Northern radicals and fanatics, elect to Congress the very men who are, of all others, the most distasteful to them, and who would be most certain to misrepresent their feelings and interests.

It is true that the South has been conquered, and, according to some radical theorists, its people have thereby lost every political right which they used to have under the Constitution and the laws; but it is certainly true that no one can vote for Senators and Representatives but those who shall have been restored by virtue of the President's Proclamation of Amnesty, or special pardon, to all the political rights which they may have lost, and among those rights is that of selecting to represent them in Congress any man who may have the qualifications prescribed by the Constitution. Otherwise the President's Proclamation of Amnesty is a delusion and a snare.

If the South shall be frightened into yielding this right, and shall elect to Congress not men who will represent them, but the followers of Butler and Sumner, they will next, we suppose, be called upon by the World to fill all their professorships with men whom Sumner and Butler shall recommend to them, and to let no man teach school, or preach, or practice law, or be a constable or a policeman, or the secretary of an insurance company, unless he shall have made himself hateful to them during the war, by proving recreant to what they and we believed to have been his highest duty. Such is the law in Missouri at this day; and it would seem that the World is of opinion that the other Southern States should follow in the footsteps of Missouri, in order, by so doing, to curry favor with the North, and secure for themselves the enjoyment of those rights to which they will have become entitled under the Constitution so soon as the President shall issue his proclamation announcing the restoration of their State to its former relations with the other States of the Union.

What right has Massachusetts to dictate to a Virginia constituency what manner of man they shall send to represent them at Washington, after Virginia shall have resumed her ancient status in the Union? or what right to require of Virginia Representatives qualifications not known to the Constitution?

If Massachusetts has any such right, and the World seems to think that she has, then is all the talk about the restoration of the South to the Union mere talk, having no foundation in fact, and the States of the South are to be held and treated as conquered provinces.—N. Y. Sun.

A package recently passed through the New York Post office, mailed at San Francisco, and bound for Dresden, Prussia the prepaid postage on which amounted to $172 40. It consisted of valuable paper inclosed in a tin cylinder.

Jefferson City and the surrounding vicinity is filled with Union refugees from Arkansas and other Southern States, and many are in a starving condition, sick and without assistance.

DAILY SENTINEL.

NEWS BY THE PAPERS.

FROM GEORGIA.

The Disarming of the People of the State--a full Account of the Murder which led to the order of Gen. Steedman--Miscegenation at the bottom of the trouble, etc.

The New York World's Augusta correspondent writes:

I wrote you yesterday a brief account of the murder of Captain Heasely. But as it has led to the issue of an important order of the major general commanding, disarming all the people of the State, and depriving them of ammunition as well for their guns as for their pistols, I will refer more particularly to the details of this case.

Captain Heasely and a young man named Hight had met at the house of a mulatto girl a few evenings before, and as both claimed her favors, high words passed between them. This difficulty was settled, and an apology sent to Capt. Heasely, which was satisfactory.

A few evenings after the captain was seated in the girl's house, and they heard a noise in the yard. He proposed to go out and learn the cause of it, but the girl fearing some trouble dissuaded him from doing so. In the meantime she saw through her window three persons in the yard whom she knew, or thought she knew as former visitors at her house, and she was very much alarmed for the captain. After a while the noise without having ceased, the captain went out to return home. The girl followed him, a short distance behind. As they approached the back gate, for she was living in a small house in the rear of her former masters, three persons rose up from a log of wood on which they were sitting, and, without any provocation or words, fired at the captain and wounded him fatally. He was also stabbed, to make their deadly work more sure. A more cowardly and disgraceful murder has never shocked our community. It was committed in the very heart of the city, before midnight, on a man who had done no harm except to win the favors of a fair young mulatto from those who had hitherto enjoyed them. There was no quarrel, nothing to excite hot blood, nothing to excuse passion or anger. The murder was cool, deliberate, planned beforehand, and the guilty perpetrators quietly laid in wait for their intended victim.

When the neighbors ran to the scene of the murder, the girl told one of them she did not know who were the murderers, but whether intimidated by the friends of the captain, or recalling the features of the persons she saw, or counting her suspicions to be facts, she soon named three persons as the murderers, and the three were arrested in their beds a short time afterwards.

The next morning, the girl was positive that these three were the murderers. To-day, when examined before the military commission who have already met to try these men for their lives, she is not so positive, being sure of two of them, but not so certain of the third. One of these two will prove an alibi. A servant who waits on him, and another person who was with him, will testify that he was in his room from 9 o'clock till after the murder was committed. His family is respectable, and his character and antecedents are not such as to make the public believe him to be guilty. The other two I have not heard much of, but one of them is the same that had the quarrel in the girl's room a few night's ago.

There is much excietment about the murder, the trial and the witnesses. The general opinion as to the murder is that it was cold-blooded and deliberate, and that the guilty deserve the severest penalties of the law. There are some, however, especially among the young, who sympathise strongly with the accused, and desire their release, even if guilty of the crime for which they are on trial. Some of these sympathise with the accused because they are their neighbors, while the murdered man is a northern soldier, toward whom they have no good will.—Some are dissatisfied with the testimony, because the girl has doubtless perjured herself on several matters incidental to the main question before the court, and has contradicted herself in several particulars more or less important. Some believe the testimony is too unsatisfactory to warrant a conviction, especially as it will be opposed by witnesses who will swear to an alibi for all the accused. Some are unwilling that a white man should be condemned on negro testimony, as they know from experience how unreliable all such witnesses are. Some believe that the accused cannot have a fair trial before United States officers, who will naturally sympathise with their fellow-soldier, and feel a strong resentment against his murderers.

The belief of those who think the accused innocent, is that the murderers were negroes, who were incensed against the deceased officer for his tampering with the virtue of one of their colored sisters, and they are strengthened in this opinion by the indignation which is felt by the negroes at other similar acts by officers and soldiers at this post.

In reply to this last opinion, it is said by the friends of the deceased that he was about to marry the girl and take her to his friends at the North. But this statement, even if true, lessens rather than increases the sympathy with the deceased, for many believe it more degrading to be the husband than the paramour of a negro.

Much regret is felt that General Steedman, who is much esteemed and respected, should have made this murder the occasion for a general order disarming the people of the whole State, as the enforcement of such an order cannot but lead to much ill-feeling and dissatisfaction. Men need their arms to defend their lives and their property, and it is feared that a general disarming will emboldon the idle, and vicious, and lustful vagabond negroes who infest every neighborhood under the new regime of freedom which has been inaugurated by the government, to commit more and more outrages on the property, virtue, and lives of the white people, especially in those sections of the State where the blacks are more numerous than the whites. The abolition of civil and criminal law, except through provost military courts, has already had a bad influence on the temper and dispositions of those who are disposed to wrong-doing; and it is feared that the disarming will increase this, and thus endanger the safety of the people, multiply criminal outrages, and add to the present troubles from anarchy and lawlessness.

Laurel Mills died in Brooklyn a few days ago under such suspicious circumstances as to induce the arrest and imprisonment of her husband, to await the result of the Coroner's investigation.—The man and his consort were Southern refugees.

DISSOLUTION.

THE UNDERSIGNED SOME MONTHS SINCE having associated themselves together to carry on the Commission and Forwarding business, in New-Berne, N. C., and circumstances having arisen which render it impracticable for the junior partner to remove to that place, therefore, by mutual consent, the Co-partnership is this day dissolved. The business will be settled up and continued by J. F. Foard, the senior partner.

NEW FALL AND WINTER GOODS FOR 1865.

A. CREECH HAS THE PLEASURE TO INform his friends and customers and the public generally, that he has just returned from NEW YORK, where he has selected with great care a large and good assortment of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods,

Embracing the newest styles and latest importations: Together with Hats Caps, Boots, Shoes, Hoop Skirts, Ladies' Cloaks, Ladies' and Misses Straw Hats, trimmed; Ladies' untrimmed Bonnets, &c., &c.

I have also in addition to my stock of Dry Goods, a very superior stock of which will be sold at prices so as to insure sale; and have opened in the R. Smith building, formerly occupied by Creech & Litchford, Commission Merchants and Auctioneers, corner of Hargett and Fayetteville Streets.

I am not going to puff and blow, and say that I bought more goods than any man living, and can sell cheaper than any other man, or sell more. Nor do I pretend to say that I can cut a man's head off and stick it on again with wax, that he will live, walk and talk again. I deal in no such humbug, but I say CALL and LOOK for yourselves. I will deal with you honestly and treat you right.

I return my thanks for your liberal patronage which I have received for the last fifteen years. I hope by honest dealing and strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same.

A. CREECH.

NOTICE.

ON Thursday night, 4th May last, I was robbed of thirty N. C. State bonds of $1,000 each, by three or more persons, one of whom was a black man and two were white. Ten numbered from one to ten inclusive and were payable on 1st July 1864. (Of these No. 6 has been recovered) Ten from 137 to 147 inclusive, payable 1st July 1865. Ten from 610 to 619 inclusive, dated 1st January 1860, and issued under an "Act authorizing the public Treasurer to sell the bonds of the State for certain purposes" ratified 16th February 1859, chapter 43. Said bonds were payable to Seth Jones or bearer; but were registered, and therefore, not transferable by delivery; see act of 1856 chapter 16. A few Coupons only were attached to the first twenty. I was robbed also of two certificates of Bank Stock: one of Bank of North Carolina for 200 shares, No. 58. The other of the Bank of Cape Fear for 201 shares.

I will give a reward of $500 for recovery of said Bonds, or a proportional sum for any one or more of them.

PROSPECTUS

"I WOULD RATHER BE RIGHT THAN BE PRESIDENT."—Henry Clay.

As a means of support for his family and to contribute to the promotion of general intelligence, of right thought and action, the perpetuity of the Union of the States and the prosperity of North Carolina, the subscriber proposes, on his own responsibility, to connect with a general printing business, the publication of an independent, high-toned, political, literary and news journal in the city of Raleigh. He expects to establish the business and issue the journal, so soon as the regular mail facilities are restored to the State. It will be printed on entirely new type, press, &c, in the highest style of the art.

Besides devoting his whole time to the editorial conduct of the paper, with such other help as will be required, he expects to engage fifteen or twenty of the ablest pens of the State to contribute to its columns regularly. In general character, its model will be the "National Intelligencer" in its palmiest days. It will be issued daily, semi weekly and weekly, as the wants of the public demand; and as it will contain a faithful record of the history of the times, all valuable State papers, dissertations on constitutional law and political economy, as well as political, literary moral and scientific essays of permanent value, the weekly will be printed in large octavo form for binding and preservation. As a family newspaper the weekly will be every way desirable.

The war has demonstrated fully, the strength and power of the Republic to maintain the government established by our fathers, against all attempts to dismember or destroy it; that the Union of these States under one general government still receives the sanction and protection of Almighty God; the absurdity and impracticability of the State right's doctrine of secession, and the impossibility of perpetuating African slavery in the United States. We accept these teachings as a solution of the war.

In politics, "The Sentinel" will neither be neutral on the one hand nor factiously partizan on the other. Its political animus will be imbibed from the fountains of conservatism drank at by the illustrious Henry Clay and the fathers of the Republic, and not from the pools of Northern or Southern radicalism. It will neither be agrarian nor aristocratic. It will not labor to bring down or level any one, but to purify and elevate all.

It shall be a leading aim of "The Sentinel" to foster and keep alive in our own people the flame of civil liberty, a jealousy for their indefeasible rights as American citizens, and an undying devotion to the Constitution and the laws, as the best means for all time to come, of preserving inviolate the Union of the States.

Finally, "The Sentinel" will strive to contribute to the cultivation of the spirit of mutual kindness, forbearance and confidence among our own people, and the restoration of amity and good feeling among the people of all sections of the Union.

North Carolina and her sister Southern States must be rejuvenated and disenthralled from the incubus of of poverty and indolence. Vigor, energy, and enterprise must be revived. Our country has been desolated, our people reduced to poverty, but the desert must again be made to bloom and blossom as the rose—our homes have been made cheerless, but they must again be made the abodes of good cheer, refinement and hospitality.

"The Sentinel" will be just and generous to the negro in his new condition, always opening to him the road to improvement and elevation as the reward of his intelligence, his industry and virtue, yet ever bearing in mind that our country is the inheritance of the white race.

Its readers will find "The Sentinel" to be a spirited, reliable and thorough newspaper.
